Our approach to the protection and processing of personal information

- In the processing and protection of personal data, we strictly follow the legal regulations, in particular Regulation 2016/679 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 27 April 2016 on the protection of individuals with regard to the processing of personal data and on the free movement of such data and repealing Directive 95/46 / EC (hereinafter referred to as GDPR).
- The activity in which personal data processing is processed will only be initiated if we have a legitimate reason for doing so.
- While we are witnessing the legitimate reason for the processing of personal data, we will assess whether it is necessary for us to process personal data by what means we will process personal data and to what extent.
- We analyze the risks that data subjects face in connection with the processing of their personal data or which are threatened by violations of the security of their personal data.
- We take precautions to mitigate these risks.
- Our employees are actively involved in the protection of our personal data. They are aware of their responsibilities and risks associated with the processing of personal data.
- We will review the rules we have adopted for the processing and protection of personal data and the implementation of our security measures.
- When introducing new technologies and technical solutions, we assess their potential impact on the rights of data subjects.

Data subjects are informed about the processing of their personal data

- We enable data subjects to obtain information about the processing of their personal data.
- Information shall be made available to data subjects before the processing of their personal data, either verbally, in paper form or in electronic form, as is customary in the case in question, and in such a way that the data subject can best understand this information.

We respect the rights of the data subject

- Each data subject may contact us in connection with the processing of his or her personal data, by e-mail to personalni@retezarna.cz or by any other appropriate means.
- We are dealing with every request by the data subject we can identify and verify his or her identity, both in terms of the content and scope of his request, but also in terms of its reasonableness and proportionality.
- The data subject may, subject to the conditions laid down by law, apply to us
 - the right of access to his or her personal data,
 - the right to correct the personal data we process,
 - the right to restrict the processing of his or her personal data,
 - the right to delete his or her personal, which we or our processors have processed for us
 - the right to object to the processing of his or her personal data; or
 - the right to lodge a complaint against the processing of his or her personal data.
- We respect if the data subject addresses his or her complaint directly to the Office for Personal Data Protection.
- If we need the consent of the data subject to process personal data, we will provide the data subject with information about such personal data processing so that he or she can freely decide whether to grant us his / her consent. The data subject for the consent to processing his or her personal data will not be invoked
- We do not make decisions based solely on automated processing of personal data, including profiling, if such a decision would have legal effects for the data subject or would have a significant impact on him or her.

To whom and how we provide personal information

- We provide the personal data of data subjects to public authorities in accordance with our legal obligations.
- If we are to provide personal information to other recipients for reasons other than the fulfilment of our statutory obligations, we will always verify the necessity of such disclosure for its reason and scope.
- We ask our personal data processors to consistently fulfil their obligations under the GDPR, other applicable laws, and the agreements we conclude with them in connection with the processing of personal data.
